

THE EMPIRE NEEDS MEN

Mother Land – By Babatunde K.O

Our mother land	For me to be documented
Oh! Mother land	I was taken of the record
Service you asked for	For me to get married
Services I rendered	I was denied
Water I asked from you
Blood you gave.	How long?
	How long?
In the middle of ocean	How long?
I risk my life	Can someone tell me
In the middle battle	How long would it take
I risk my life	For Mother Land to recognise my presence
No one! No one! No one!
Appreciates my effort.	I say it land to the world
	I am son of the soil
For me to be approved	My ancestor rules this land
I was calling names	And I shall remain centre of attention

SEEK AND YE SHALL FIND

Our African ancestors have fought in the wars.

This truth has been hidden from Africans and the world at large.

The information will not be given to Africans.

The truth will not be given to Africans.

Africans must seek the truth themselves.

If we seek, we shall find.

Finding the truth about Africans who have fought in the war can be found.

This is so because a small minority of others have already done so.

The task is to find who our ancestors were.

The task is to research the records and find our lost generations.

The Europeans have written us out of history.

Our task is to write ourselves back.
